There is a further report of a buzzard being shot and killed near Laskill, Bilsdale in the North Yorkshire moors national park. The BBC are also reporting the death of 2 dogs from suspected poison near Lindley Wood reservoir, also in North Yorkshire.

Looks like the wildlife criminals are being very active in protecting their interests!!!

The sooner the rest of the UK follows the lead taken by the Scottish parliament in licensing grouse shooting, but also takes the matter a step further by licensing all aspects of game shooting, so that shooting can immediately be suspended when wildlife crimes occur the better.

The current legislation which is supposed to protect nature and wildlife is just totally inadequate, and those committing the crimes know full well they will probably never be caught or face punishment for their wrong doings.
