

CHICHESTER PEREGRINES

Update No. 4 22nd May 14th 2025

It's five weeks since our last update and we have great news!

Our parents have 3 lovely healthy little chicks! The first arrived on 10th May early morning and was quickly followed by another arrival later in the day. The third tiny chick arrived on 11th May and all are doing well. It is still possible that the 4th arrival is on the way, however the 4th egg looks to be not viable.

All is well so far Mum is feeding the youngsters and Dad is continuing to help with the little ones. Mum is now allowing Dad to feed them and he is continuing to bring small batches of food. Dad is being a very good father, when Mum has a break, by taking his turn keeping the tiny ones warm.

Mum reveals her first born and then settles down with the remaining eggs.

Proud Dad (the eggshell on shingle))

Mum feeding the first 2 chicks

Mum eating the 3rd eggshell

Mum with her 3 chicks

Mum and her 3 healthy chicks

Mum feeding her chicks

Dad watches - Mum feeds chicks

Dad is allowed to sit on the young chicks

Mum and Dad