LIVE FEED

As broadband has finally reached the particular depths of this part of the Scottish Borders, I am excited to be able to tell you that we have set up a live feed so you can watch the day to day “goings-on” at Samson and Augusta’s nest. It’s very much at the experimental phase and you know how much fun and games we’ve already had this year with the non-osprey side of operations. However, if you will bear with us when the feed doesn’t work or the sun refuses to shine and the battery goes on strike, plus all the other glitches that might happen, you can enjoy as much as I do the truly awesome sight of our osprey family raising their 2026 famil

If there is sufficient interest, I can hopefully refine the system over the winter, although I’ll not be able to match some of the other wonderful live cams that are available. In the meantime, YouTube will not let us livestream unless we have at least 50 subscribers, so if you would be kind enough to subscribe (it’s free) on the link below, we will be able to go “live” very soon.
